PLACES TO SEE

① Toyouke Daijingu (Geku)

Toyouke Daijingu, or Geku is one of two main sanctuaries at Ise Jingu. Visitors customarily go first to Geku and then to Naiku. Geku is dedicated to the deity Toyouke Omikami, who is responsible for the harvest.

② Kotai Jingu (Naiku)

Kotai Jingu, or Naiku is one of two main sanctuaries at Ise Jingu. Naiku is dedicated to Amaterasu Omikami, who is the ancestral kami of the imperial family and the most highly revered kami in the Shinto tradition.

③ Kawasaki Historical District

In premodern times, this neighborhood was a busy port that goods and people from all over the country traveled through. Today, several traditional buildings remain, recalling its commercial past, and some of these have been converted to restaurants, cafes, and shops.

④ Jingu Museum of Fine Arts

The official name of the museum is the "Jingu Museum of Fine Arts to Commemorate the Periodic Moving of the Deities." It was built in 1993 on the occasion of the 61st sengu. There are works of calligraphy, paintings, and sculptures on display.

⑤ Jingu Museum of Agriculture

The museum exhibits agricultural implements related to the sengu. It holds about 4,300 items, including the rice offerings made by the emperor at the most important event in the Jingu calendar, the Kannamesai.

⑥ Jingu History Museum

The museum was completely remodeled after the 62nd sengu in 2013, and it holds about 13,000 items. Many of these are connected to the sengu, including scrolls and decorative pieces that were part of Jingu.

⑦ Museum of Shinto and Japanese Culture

Kogakkan University's Museum of Shinto and Japanese Culture introduces Japanese history and traditions connected with Shinto. The exhibits include content related to festival utensils, food offerings, and rituals.

⑧ Jingu Library

The Jingu Library holds about 260,000 volumes and its collection boasts materials from the premodern period. Many of its holdings are related to Shinto and Jingu. It is located near the Kogakkan University Museum of Shinto and Japanese Culture.

⑨ Kogakkan University

Kogakkan University is located in a lushly green, natural environment near the sacred shrine precincts of Ise Jingu. Founded in 1882, it has faculties of Education, Letters, and Contemporary Japanese Society.

⑩ SENGUKAN MUSEUM

This is a museum to introduce the ritual of the Ise-Jingu, Shikinen Sengu. The exhibit shows the general idea of Matsuri held at Ise Jingu, including the replica of Shoden, the main shrine for worshipping the Kami(God), as well as the production process of the Onshozokushinpo - divine treasures and garments for Kami.
